Liliane Willens was born of Russian parentage in the former French Concession of Shanghai, China. She, her parents and siblings lived in Shanghai during World War II, and later, two years under the newly established People's Republic of China. When she immigrated to the US, she studied at Boston University where she received her B.S., M.A and a Ph.D. degree in French literature. She taught at Boston College and at Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Now retired, she gives talks on China in the US and overseas. Dr. Willens' presentation will be followed by a Q&A and the signing of her book, Stateless in Shanghai.
